How influential are civil society organisations (CSOs) in South Africa and Uganda? This article from Democratization examines the extent to which CSOs influence government policy and legislation and extend citizen participation in public affairs. It also considers how far external funding influences policy engagement and outcomes.